

Edged Weapon Awareness & Spontaneous Response

Instructor Certification Course®

COURSE LOCATION : SCHEDULING NATIONWIDE

COURSE DATE: TBD

COURSE PROFILE: Recognized as one of the most popular programs in the U.S. today and developed in England, this (16 hour) instructor level certification course is designed and developed for those agencies desiring to train an instructor to teach this highly acclaimed program to other department personnel. Unarmed response to an edged weapon assault is a reality. The dynamics of almost all edged weapon assaults means that drawing of a baton or firearm in response is not possible. Often it is not possible to disengage. In such circumstances we are forced to use what nature has given us in terms of physiological responses. This system of defense against edged weapons makes use of those natural responses and teaches how to survive the attack and how to establish control or disengage.

Evaluated by officers as one of the best survival programs ever attended!

Topics Covered in the Program Include:

- History of the program and successful use in the field by officers against a variety of edged weapons
- Course data collected showing reductions in officers' injury as a result of both increased awareness levels and more appropriate responses/action during the encounter.
- Training includes information on real life edged weapon attacks, video clips of assaults, policy, strategy, protective vest design considerations and multiple officer/assailant scenarios.
- Training also includes low light and reduced vision scenario work.
- Written & practical examinations.
